

This is a response to your concerns about Richard Reynolds who was identified in his father's (Richard Reynolds) Will and whether he is the Richard who migrated to Kentucky. I have divided my response into seven parts.

PART ONE

The following data and documentation will establish that this Richard Reynolds migrated to Kentucky and was in fact the son of the Richard Reynolds who died in Wilkes County, Georgia in 1787. Family members that were the children of the Richard and Sarah Ann Doggett Reynolds family were researched. This information will establish the fact that Richard Reynolds of Georgia did go to Kentucky as well as other family members. His exact route may never be known. I can document that three of his brothers identified in the Richard Reynolds estate documents did in fact go to Kentucky.

The most compelling information is the fact that these three brothers, Thomas, Joseph and Benjamin had purchased named slaves sold at Richard Reynolds estate sale, while they were residing in Wilkes County, Georgia. These three named slaves appear by name in Wills or historical documents in Kentucky and Illinois, with the same family. It would almost be beyond probability that three Reynolds family members named Thomas, Joseph, and Benjamin would be in Kentucky and Illinois with the same named slaves and not be Richards brothers identified in their fathers Will.

In the Inventory of the estate of Richard Reynolds, deceased, dated September 30, 1789, four slaves are listed:

Flora, age 81

Jude, age 25

Genl, (General), age 8

Ned, age 2

The slave named Flora, age 81, and would not be a person that would be able to migrate to Kentucky due to her age. SD299

On April 3, 1793 at the estate sale of the personal property of Richard Reynolds, the following people with the surname Reynolds purchased at least one item:

Thomas, Negro slave Judy, one chest, pot, two items unreadable, pair of _____, one ____ and wedge

Joseph, one Negro boy General, one Bible

Benjamin, one Negro boy Ned,

John, one feather bed, plates

Betsey, one feather bed, one _____ iron

Spencer, one feather bed, 2 dishes and 4 spoons, _____utensils

Final payment of estate settlement to the Richard Reynolds children and son-in-law occurred January 6, 1795, Wilkes County, Georgia.

The following listed individuals received their settlement: Jacob Reiger, son-in-law (wife Ann Reynolds), Geo, Joseph, Richard, Betsey, John, Benjamin, Spencer and Thomas, the administrator of the estate.

The individuals with a Reynolds surname who purchased items at estate sale of Richard Reynolds were compared to the children who received their final estate settlement. It is noted that six like named children purchased items at the estate sale. Only Richard, George, and son-in-law Jacob Reiger are not identified in this document purchasing items. Richard was in Kentucky at the time of sale of the personal property and did not return to Georgia to participate in said sale. It would not have been practicable or reasonable to travel to Georgia and return to Kentucky with estate sale items.

He did return for his portion of his share of the final estate settlement in 1795.

Jacob Reiger was residing in Virginia at the time of the sale of the personal estate items. It has not been established if his wife Ann Reynolds was alive at this time period.

It is unknown why George did not purchase any items at the sale. He was living in Oglethorpe County, Georgia in 1800.

Additionally, I have researched the names of the children and their children identified in the Will of Richard Reynolds of Wilkes County, Georgia. Of particular interest were the children that were alive at the time of the 1850, 1860, and 1880 US Census. This census data would determine if any of these children indicated they were born in Georgia, Virginia or Kentucky. A number of these children indicate they were in fact born in Georgia prior to coming to Kentucky. Others identified their parents or their birth location by states.

I have used land records to establish a date when these families resided in Kentucky.

The following children listed in the Estate of Richard Reynolds and a son-in-law is identified below:

RICHARD REYNOLDS:

In an attempt to identify the location of Pleasants birth, a review of his children who were alive at the time of the 1880 or later US Census was compiled. This information indicates the following: Four children indicated he was born in Kentucky; two children indicated he was born in Virginia; and one child indicated he was born in North Carolina.

Why the different birth states? I believe this subject could have been confused as to where he was born due to the changing of state boundaries at the time of his birth. The Commonwealth of Kentucky was a part of Virginia, although they were in the process of trying to form a separate state in the late 1780's. This movement resulted in the formation of the Territory of Kentucky on July 26, 1790. Kentucky was formally admitted into the Union on June 1, 1792. He may have lived near the North Carolina state line and merely unaware where his father was living at the time of his birth.

The Commonwealth of Kentucky was a part of Virginia, although they were in the process of trying to form a separate state. This movement resulted in the formation of the Territory of Kentucky on July 26, 1790. Kentucky was formally admitted into the Union on June 1, 1792.

REYNOLDS DNA STUDY

The Reynolds DNA-Genealogy Project - Y-DNA Colorized Chart

For genealogy within the most recent fifteen generations, STR markers help define paternal lineages. Y-DNA STR markers change (mutate) often enough that most men who share the same STR results also share a recent paternal lineage. This page displays Y-Chromosome DNA (Y-DNA) STR results for the project. It uses the colorized format. The columns display each project member's kit number, paternal ancestry information according to project settings, the paternal tree branch (haplogroup), and actual STR marker results. The color coding of STR names is explained here. In the haplogroups column, haplogroups in green are confirmed by SNP testing. Haplogroups in red are predicted. Above each subgroup, we display the minimum, maximum and mode values for each STR marker in the subgroup. STR marker values that differ from the mode values are color-coded. SD 199

AUGUSTUS RICHARDS

Birth: Aug. 1, 1780
Spotsylvania County, Virginia, USA

Death: Dec. 10, 1851
Henderson, Mills County, Iowa, USA

Obituary of Augustus Richards (From the Diary of Silas Richards, son of Augustus, as it was copied from the Iowa Republican.)

Mr. Richards was born in Virginia in 1780. In his ninth year, he moved with his father's family to Ross County, Ohio. After going through his primary studies, he commenced, and completed the study of medicine and surgery with Dr. Edmonson of Chilicothe. He afterwards settled in Highland County, Ohio. During his residence here, he served as surgeon in the War of 1812. He removed to Sidney, Ohio, in 1822, where he practised his profession a number of years, with eminent success. He married in early life, a highly respectable lady, Frances Lee Doggett, the daughter of Elmore and Elizabeth Doggett, of Mason County Kentucky.

In 1836, he immigrated to Putnam County, Illinois, with his family, five sons and five daughters. Shortly after settling in this state, he embraced the Mormon faith and moved with that people to the western part of Iowa, opposite to Council Bluffs. Having become dissatisfied with the church, he left it, and located with part of his family in Mills County on a most delightful tract of land where he was engaged in cultivating the soil till the time of his death. During his illness he at times suffered excruciating pain, which he bore with great firmness and Christian fortitude.

Dr. Richards has left behind him his most excellent lady, five sons and four daughters, to mourn the loss of their earthly parent.

Dr. Richards, in person, was about six feet two inches high, rather lightly built, possessing in his early days great strength, and activity. His features were plain, his brow ample, his eyes clear and expressive, of great firmness, benevolence and intelligence. His manners were easy and cordial, his dress, habits, and tastes simple, and his style of living temperate in the extreme. His entire life was unblemished and the sweetness of his disposition made him the idol of his own family, and the favorite of all who knew him. His mind was of an original and solid cast, admirably balanced, combining the comprehensiveness of reason with the penetration of instinct, a gentler heart in no man's bosom. But he is dead and numbers mourn his loss, his friends sorrow but not as those who have no hope.

In the Iowa, Pottawattamie County Annotated Record of US Census, 1850, Augustus was living at Pottawattamie County, Iowa. This document also identifies where Augustus was born, date of birth, death location, father and mother, marriage location and date and names his children. SD 226

This would establish that the family of Chattin Doggett; Margaret Doggett Scroggins; Thomas Doggett; the Richard and Sarah Ann Doggett Reynolds family was in Georgia during same time period. Clarke County and Wilkes County are geographically close to each other.

It is likely that Richard Reynolds and the Doggett's in Georgia would be in communication with the Doggett families that were in Virginia. My Richard could have traveled to Virginia, met with the Doggett's and then traveled to Kentucky to obtain land. Some of his Doggett's relatives settled in Mason County and Richard in the nearby County of Madison.

1789, April 7. Richards Runals is identified as a land owner in Madison County, Kentucky. This dated entry was made in the First Kentucky Census of 1790. SD 195
